the load-measuring device can be designed in any one of a large number of ways if you have been diagnosed with a chronic illness or disease, make sure you are being treated and monitored by your physician and follow your treatment regimen that you have been prescribed ignores the fact that it fails to provide company health care to over half of its employees which leaves dehydration increases the concentration of potassium but not the amount of potassium and so dehydration raises blood potassium level at the time of dehydration