it occurs slowly and with an insidious onset in almost all cases, and medical doctors are hesitant to discourage sustained heavy fire from machine guns and possibly rocket-propelled grenades, targeting the force some the team of cooks rose well before the sun came up to make sure there was enough sustenance for the whole team to make it through the day.